were slow in realizing it, and their negotiations with Bulgaria and Serbia up to a recent date treated the question as the old fight over territory in Macedonia. But all the time Germany was setting the scenes in the larger drama—the winning of Bulgaria and the linking of the central powers to Turkey and the near east.

Each of the Balkan states has a number of issues involved in the new struggle. Some explanation of these has been gathered from official and diplomatic sources—Serbian, Bulgarian, Grecian and Rumanian—and from other available quarters, showing the respective viewpoints about as follows:

Bulgaria considers herself the aggrieved party of the Balkans. She Bulgaria considers herself the aggreeved party of the Balkans. She claims to have done most of the fighting against Turkey over Macedonia and to have received the least of the reward, the bulk going to Serbia and Greece, which, Bulgaria claims, did not do the hard fighting. The Bulgarian legation furnished the Associated Press with a pamphlet review of its case, showing the following distribution of the territory taken from Turkey:

"Serbia, with the smallest territory before the war, received 39,000 square kilometers, of which 15,000 were fertile, and added 1,200,000 to her population.

"Greece, next smallest in area and population, gained 54,000 square kilometers, of which 28,000 were fertile, and added 1,500,000 to her population.

"Bulgaria, the largest in area and population, received only 15,000 square kilometers, of which none was fertile, and added 1,000,000 to her population, received only 15,000 square kilometers, of which none was fertile, and added 1,400,000 to her population, received only 15,000 square kilometers, of which none was fertile, and added 1,400,000 to her population, received only 15,000 square kilometers, of which none was fertile, and added 1,400,000 to her population, received as follows:

"Is this possible? Yes! And because of it, this is what Bulgaria demands. She is not satisfied with such a division; she demands a new one; she shuts her ears to proposals of a Balkan union in which she pays all the expense."

Bulgaria Alleges Atrocities.

Bulgaria has issued another pamphlet, printed at the royal printing establishment at Sofia, entitled "How the Serbs Behave in Macedonia," giving detailed accounts of alleged atrocities in Serbia's part of Macedonia against priests of the Bulgarian state church. These accounts are harrowing in the Royal Part of Macedonia way of Cincinnati, Ohio, for duty in connection with studies of industrial wastes.

was to avoid exciting Greece's sus-ceptibilties that her field of expansion was being encroached upon. Greece's harbors, notably Saloniki and Cavalla, also supply the allies with the best strategic landing ports, for the double purpose of aiding Greece's ally, Serbia, and the greater end of throw-ing a barrier in front of the Austro-German advance toward Turkey.

Rumania Holds Aloof.

Rumania has thus far held aloof from the gathering conflict. Her premise trality. Rumania is at issue with Br garia over the Black sea country, which Bulgaria claims was unfairly tak-Bulgaria claims was unfairly take from her by Rumania. Rumania's natural interests are with Russia, as Rumanian hopes of expansion is northward in Transylvania. But there a powerful elements at work to draw Rumania in, and if she enters the conflict she will add the largest population and the largest army of the bekan states to the settlement of the internal and the largest army of the largest population.

PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE.

Changes of duties and stations United States public health service for the seven days ended November 17 are announced as follows:

rected to report at the Marine Hospital, Pittsburgh, Pa., for temporary duty.
Assistant Surgeon G. C. Lake, directed to proceed to Keyport. N. J., and vicinity, to assist in the investigation of detailed accounts of alleged atrocities in Serbia's part of Macedonia against priests of the Bulgarian state church. These accounts are harrowing in the extreme, alleging that in some cases Bulgarians were crucified, others buried alive, others tortured until they died, with names and places. This pamphlet is given as an evidence of Bulgaria's claim that her people in Macedonia are being crushed.

Another of Bulgaria's allegations is that Rumania took 8,370 square kilometers of Bulgaria's Black sea front while her hands were tied during the struggle with Turkey. This Black sea country added 300,000 people to Rumania's population. The people are Bulgarians, according to Bulgaria, and she wants them back, and the Black sea front, too.

Aside from these official claims there are reports of other aspirations of Bulgaria. King Ferdinand is said to foressee another great Byzantian empire in southeastern Europe, with himself as the first Czar of Byzantium. The realization of this dream would mean the absorption of the Balkan states into Bulgaria, and her evolution into an empire stretching to the Bosporus. Cherif Pasha, the Turkish agitator, has even asserted in a recent signed article in Paris newspapers that the Young Turk element had agreed with Bulgaria to turn over Constantinople to that country rather than let it pass into the lands of the allies through their assault on the Dardanelles.
